User Definition: An individual who makes use of EMSL resources as part of an active User proposal in the EMSL Usage System is considered an EMSL user. Each user will be categorized as one of the following (in hierarchical order):

- 1) Onsite User – An individual who is physically present using an EMSL capability, at least once during the reporting period, to conduct research on an active peer-reviewed project.
- 2) Remote User– An individual who is a member of an approved research team and who a) remotely accesses EMSL capabilities by logging onto the EMSL network to operate a piece of research instrumentation, or to use the HPC system, b) is authorized to modify computational codes developed and maintained by EMSL, or c) sends or receives materials/samples.
- 3) Data User: An individual who is a member of an approved research project team and who analyzes, reduces, or manipulates project data obtained from an EMSL capability or from the HPC or data storage systems.

User Counts:

- 1) Users are counted once per fiscal year, and do not include EMSL staff.
- 2) Proposals are counted only once according to proposal type, regardless of how many proposals of that type a user may have. Users with multiple proposal types, however, will be shown once per each proposal type.
- 3) EMSL staff proposals (Intramural and Staff Time) are not included in proposal counts.
